Democratic despondency is an epidemic this year.

The "dead issues" are giving the Democrats a good deal of trouble.

Little Bragg still hurrahs for the Fond du Lac platform. That is natural—he made it.

The Democratic State Convention hopes to borrow some enthusiasm from the State fair. There is none in the party.

Whenever the Democrats attempt to probe the Republican party they scamper in worse confusion than if they had run into a hornet's nest.

The "needy politicians" are not after the missions to England and Russia. Those only who want to pay for diplomatic honors can afford to put in their claims.

The Democrats are now looking up a man who would like to satisfy his ambition to run for Governor on their ticket.
The nomination will have to go begging among the better class of the party.

There is a paper published up at Two Rivers, called the Chronicle, which is Democratic in politics. The attempted boom for Bouck for Governor has woke the Chronicle up, and now it declares that should the candidate be taken from the Sixth District, it should take up Senator Hudd, of Green Bay, and not "that slouchy, sunt-eyed old political skeptic, Gabe Bouck." The Democratic discord is so terrible for anything.

The Madison Democrat needs some of Judge Davis' soothing syrup. Since the Republican Convention it has showed more alarming symptoms than any other Democratic paper in the State. It claims to have found the State rights heresy in the Republican party, and yet it won't be happy. It thinks it has discovered that Congressman Burrows, of Michigan, don't know anything, but this doesn't give it consolation. It says the Fond du Lac platform will be kicked overboard this year, but still it has no faith in Democratic success. It boasts that the Republican record is infamous, but that Governor Smith is a nullifier, but it will not utter one word of cheer to the forlorn hope. Its symptoms are decidedly distressing.

The report is going the rounds of the press that Nathaniel P. Banks is about to assume the role of temperance lecturer.
This course is not taken because he "feels called" to reclaim those who are addicted to excessive drinking, but because his financial condition makes it necessary that he should increase his income. Banks has had a remarkable history, and for the past twenty-five years he has been a prominent man in the politics of this country, which makes his decision to become a temperance lecturer for the money there is in it, one of the strange things of the time. Like Henry Wilson, he began his boyhood life under discouraging circumstances. He worked in a factory and studied at his books at night. After he became of age he studied law, became a prominent Democratic speaker, was elected to the Massachusetts Legislature, and in 1853 found his way to Congress. In 1855 he was elected Speaker of the House of Representatives after a contest of two months which was more exciting and prolonged than any similar event in the history of this country.
He is one of the best presiding officers ever elected to that position, and so thorough was he in parliamentary law, that during all the exciting scenes of those memorable times, not one of his decisions was ever overruled by the House. He became Governor of Massachusetts in 1858, and a Major-General in the Army in 1861, but as a General he was a failure. His Red River Expedition showed his weakness, and from the time the lamented General Canby relieved him of his command in May, 1864, just at the close of the expedition, he began to decline.
He was elected to Congress after the war, but never could gain the exalted position and popularity he once enjoyed. At one time the name of Nathaniel P. Banks was a household word, but now his name is passing out of the homes of the people.
He has lost his prominence, is in moderate circumstances, and to support himself has assumed the role of a lecturer.

EXPOSING THEMSELVES.

It will be remembered that last year the Democrats of Cincinnati preferred charges against Congressman Butterworth and Young, of that city, charging that they were elected through fraud and bribery.
The Democrats also made an attack on the election laws, and hence an investigation was ordered and during the past eight or ten days the investigation has been in progress. The result so far does not disap-point the R-publicans, but the expectations of the Democrats have not been realized. It is a good deal like the Glover investigation—hunting for Republican frauds and finding none but Democratic.
All the testimony heard by the Investigating Committee goes to show that the election last fall in that city was an exceedingly fair one, and was in all respects admirably conducted, and not a Democrat can be found who will testify under oath to the contrary. There was no proof that

THE "SHERMAN BOOM."

What a Gentleman of Experience and Ability Says on the Subject.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—A gentleman of ability and experience in public matters, who has just returned from a visit to New England, says that the "Sherman boom" in that corner of the country is not the result of sudden enthusiasm awakened by the Secretary's visit, but is a "deep-down" feeling, and means business. Within the past three months no man has risen so fast in popular opinion in New England as Sherman. Should the Sherman boom continue to increase in force at the present rate, by July next he will have a solid New England delegation at the Presidential Convention, excepting only Maine, which will, of course, be for Blaine first choice, but undoubtedly Sherman second choice.
It will be recalled that at the Cincinnati Convention, three years ago, Blaine did not carry New England solid at any time. It is now said that the popularity of Secretary Sherman is so great that were the convention held this month Sherman would get four-fifths of New England, except Maine. This gentleman feels that the Grant boom is dying out, although Grant is as popular as ever. But the belief is gaining ground that he does not want the position, will not "scrabble" for it, and that Sherman is rapidly coming to the front among the Grant stalwart element, and fills the bill in all particulars.

THE DE LA MATYR.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 31.—Congressman De La Matyr, the great Indiana National, arrived home to-night fresh from the East.
He says his party will have a full ticket in New York; that Maine will be carried by the Nationals; that they will have a ticket in each of the Southern States, with Democratic candidates generally to draw off strength from that party. He represents his party as rapidly increasing in strength throughout the Southern States, Kansas, Arkansas and Iowa. He believes the Ohio Nationals will vote their own ticket, in the main, refusing to amalgamate with the Democrats. He will not take part in the Ohio campaign, but returns to Maine Tuesday to stump the State. He thinks Congress did great educational work for the Greenback cause.

NEBRASKA.

The Nebraska Republicans Making Ready for Fall Work.

OMAHA, July 31.—At a meeting of the Republican State Central Committee, it was decided to hold the State Convention in this city October 1. This will be the first Convention in Omaha for several years, Lincoln having been the favorite political center. The campaign is unimportant—only one Supreme Judge and one University Regent to be elected—but has a strong bearing on the United States Senatorial contest next year, when a successor is to be elected to Paddock. Senators Paddock and Saunders and Congressman Valentine appeared before the committee and made brief speeches containing sound Republican doctrine.

BURNED TO DEATH.

A Woman and Her Infant Child Burned to Death at Battle Creek.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., July 31.—This morning, at Gogane Lake, two miles distant, the steamer Red Clark caught fire, burned, and sunk. Two boat-houses were also burned. Loss, $2,000; no insurance.
The dwelling house of James Cleveland also caught fire. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland and four children were asleep up stairs.
Cleveland and two children escaped by jumping from the window, but before Mrs.
Cleveland and a little infant could be rescued they burned to death. Another four-year-old child is not expected to live.

THE IOWA MALADY.

CEDAR RAPIDS, July 31.—The epidemic among children which broke out at Centre Point about a week ago seems to be abating there, but is on the increase at Walker, seven miles farther north. Some five or six deaths have occurred in Walker during the past few days, and it is reported that there are between forty and fifty cases in that vicinity now. The physicians pronounce it virulent cholera-infantum or dysentery.

WAYNE MONUMENT.

ERIE, Pa., July 31.—The corner-stone of the monument to General Anthony Wayne was laid here to-day, with imposing ceremonies. General Wayne's remains were exhumed in 1809, the flesh was boiled from the bones and reinterred, the bones being taken to Chester county, Pa. The monument is to be on the site of the original interment, and where a portion of the remains now lie.

MEMPHIS.

Eight New Cases and Five Deaths.

MEMPHIS, July 31.—The day has been warm. To-night at 8 o'clock a storm threatened the city, but at this writing (10 p. m.) the heavens are cloudless.
There were eight new cases and five deaths to-day.

FISH COMMISSIONERS.

MILWAUKEE, July 31.—The Investigating Committee of the Wisconsin State Board of Fish Commissioners concluded its labors to-night, and completely exonerated Superintendent Welcher, against whom charges had been made, and at the same time resolved to inform President Welch, of Madison, that his resignation as Commissioner would be accepted.

A RUNAWAY.

RACINE, July 31.—This evening, while the Hon. J. L. Case was driving one of his spirited horses on Wisconsin street, the animal became frightened, throwing Mr.
Case from his buggy, injuring him seriously.
He was conveyed to his residence on Main street, and a physician summoned.

port, the actress, was married to Edward F. Price, of New York, at Carlton, Pa.,

The "Star Spangled Banner."

From the Inter Ocean.
LOUISA COUNTY, Iowa, June 25, 1879.
Please tell me through your paper who was the author of the "Star Spangled Banner"? On what occasion and where was it first sung?

A READER OF YOUR PAPER FIFTEEN YEARS.
Answer.—Francis Scott Key, a lawyer of Frederick, Maryland, was the author of the "Star Spangled Banner," which he composed while a prisoner in the British fleet during the bombardment of Fort McHenry.
The facts relating to the composition of this song are worth reproducing:
The British, having captured Washington, returned to their vessels, carrying with them Dr. Beanes, a prominent citizen and physician of Upper Maryland. Mr. Key, with the permission of the President, proceeded to board the English fleet and solicit his release. The British Admiral, Sir Cochrane, upon whose flagship the Doctor was imprisoned, being about to make an attack upon Baltimore, detained them both until the attacks should have been taken place. On the evening of the bombardment the two were sent, together with General J. S. Skinner, on board the American cartel, The Minden, which was anchored in sight of Fort McHenry, with a view to the Doctor's release, and to prevent their landing and carrying information to their unsuspecting countrymen.
From the deck the three friends saw the bombardment of Fort McHenry, which soon ended. While the bombardment lasted, the "bombs bursting in air" was evidence that the fort had not surrendered.
The firing ceased upon after midnight. All was once more still. Having no communication with the shore, the Americans were in grave doubt as to the result of the fight and the fate of their many friends in the city. They awaited the dawn with the greatest solicitude. Then "on that shore, dimly seen through the mist of the deep," they discerned the flag they had watched at the twilight's last gleaming still waving above the fort, and the broad stripes and bright stars, defiantly unfurled to the breeze, shone brightly as a beacon of hope to the beating hearts in the bright rays of the rising sun. It was upon the deck of the Minden, between midnight and dawn, that the song was written whose stanzas expressed the feelings of thousands of American citizens. To their great joy they soon learned that the attack upon Baltimore had failed, that Ross was killed, and that the British were re-embarking the forces which had fought North Point.
When the fleet was ready to sail, Mr. Key and his friends were released, and proceeded to Baltimore where, from the ruins substratum jotted down on the back of a letter, the song was reduced to its present form, and read to Judge Nichols, one of the gallant defenders of the fort. So pleased was he with it that he had it printed by Samuel Sands, the apprentice of Captain Berry Edges, who was then off on defense duty, and copies of it were distributed among the citizens. It was first sung in a restaurant next to the old Holiday Street Theater, by Charles Durang, to an assembly of the patriotic defenders of the city, and after that nightly at the theater.

Concluded.
Now we have got to meet the question.
They have come.

TO STAY AND RULE.
And let me say right here, although a little out of the line of my argument, give them complete control of this Government and they will make the Republic what they expected to make the Southern Confederacy. They have got the foundation started.

Now, my fellow citizens, no sooner had we adopted those constitutional amendments than we had another great battle to fight. After putting down the war and gathering up the fruits of the great struggle we were confronted with

ANOTHER GREAT DANGER.
The Democratic party of the North—of course all the Democrats of the South agreed with them—said: "We cannot pay this debt, it is no use talking. It is an enormous thing." And the Democratic party turned right round upon the question of the Greenback. Now I remember, when it was first issued—of course there were no Democrats in Wisconsin of that kind, but there were some of that kind in Michigan—who, when they were first issued, said they were unconstitutional.
Of course, you had not any such here, but with us we had some. They said we had no right to issue them.

IT WAS UNCONSTITUTIONAL.
Gold and silver was the money of the Constitution. But we said to them: "We haven't got any. We have got to put down this rebellion, and we have not got any money, and the only thing we can do is to issue these promises to pay. They said: 'You have no right to do it. It is clearly unconstitutional.' We did not have time to look into it, but we could see that it could be done and save the Government. We had perhaps some doubt about the constitutionality of

ISSUING THE GREENBACK, but the difference between the Republican and Democratic parties was this: That the Republican party gave the benefit of the doubt to their country, and the Democratic party gave the benefit of the doubt to rebels. [Applause.] So we issued them.
We would have been glad to have paid in gold and silver, but you remember the Democratic party were in power just before we came, and we found the Treasury

WITHOUT ANYTHING IN IT.
[Laughter.] We had not any money; we had not any vessels, any arms, any bayonets. They had stolen them all, and crowded them all into Southern arsenals, from foundation stone to turret. So we had to issue the greenback, and when the pay of the soldier became due, we went to him and said: "We have not any money"; and the soldier very properly said: "What are you going to do? I enlisted in a hurry.
I enlisted in a minute I did not leave a thing for my wife and children, I started to-night, I suppose that you would pay me at the end of thirty days, and I would send something home, but I have not got a cent. What will you do about it?" And Uncle Sam finally said: "I will tell you; the only thing in the world I can do is this:
I will give you my note." That is all there is of it. [Laughter.] That is

ALL THERE WAS OF IT.
So Uncle Sam handed out the note to the boy, and he looked at it: "The United States will pay five dollars," and he said:
"Take care, you don't say when a man is signed by Spinner, Spinner is good, I suppose; say, will you pay?" "Pay of course." "Why don't you say when?" Uncle Sam says: "I cannot tell just when.
I knew when this rebellion would be put down, I could say when. It would be after that was put down." Well, the boy said, "Will you pay then? when the rebellion is put down, will you fix the time then?" And Uncle Sam said, "Certain." "Very well, then," said the heroic boy, and he took up the flag and

CARRIED IT TO THE FRONT, with the promises of the Government to pay, and he said: "If the putting down of the rebellion fixes the time, God help us, we will fix the time." [Applause.] And he took these promises and sent them home. They took them down to a Democratic shop to pay a little store bill, and the Democrat shook his head and said: "It would not go; they were never going to be paid, never in the world." When the war was over and we put down the rebellion,

THE GREENBACK WAS OUT.
They did go down some. They went down to the well over 30 cents on the dollar, because there was a class of men saying all the time that we could not pay. And when the war was over, we commenced catering upon a process of paying these greenbacks, and then the Democratic party turned right around and said: "Hold on! that is not constitutional; you must not pay them. Give us more." [Laughter and applause.] The whole Democratic party, almost to-day, is drifting, and sliding, and slipping over, for more greenbacks. We don't want any more; we want to pay them. That is a fair promise; that is what we promised to pay them; that is what we are bound to do. Now you say let us have this question to manage, and we will take care of them; but so will we. [Laugher.]

WE HAVE NOT FORGOTTEN
what you said about that greenback once, when that little fellow was first born, that was spoken of this afternoon; his head looked puny. He looked as though he would not live. We have not forgotten that you leaped over the cradle of his infancy, and said: "That is a lance-head." And some of you were so ungenerous as to suggest that it was an unconstitutional boy.
But it was our child. We claimed him.

We stood by him. You hissed him; called him hard names. He only weighed about thirty-three pounds; but under the guardianship and care of the Republican party,

WE HAVE TAKEN CARE OF HIM, and steadily he has ascended the rugged heights of resumption, until to-day, in spite of the Democratic party, he weighs one hundred pounds and stands upon the summit of resumption, wearing a crown of gold and sandals of silver. [Great applause.] Now, my Democratic friends, all we ask of you is just let him alone. [Laugher.] We are paying off the debt. In 1865 we owed $2,750,000,000. This moment we owe $1,990,000,000, and $750,000,000 of public debt has been discharged in fourteen years. We paid all the running expenses of the Government, all the pensions; and, in addition to that, have reduced our interest from 7 1/2 per cent to 4 per cent. So to-day we are borrowing money at a lower rate of interest than any Government on the face of the earth but England herself.
[Applause.]

Now don't you see, my Democratic friends, that having paid $750,000,000 in fourteen years, that in thirty years

WE WILL PAY OFF THE NATIONAL DEBT; and I want to say to you, confidentially, so you won't be to any trouble and waste of money, that that is the time we have fixed to go out. [Laughter.] These are the three great battles we have fought—the three great victories we have won. Do you think there is nothing more for us to do?

WE HAVE MADE FREEDOM UNIVERSAL.
But I want to say to you, in all sincerity, here to-night, that the freedom of the black man in this country, here to-day, is a mockery and a lie. We may as well look at things as they are—may as well understand them—there is no freedom in the Southern States. Why, immediately when the war was over, don't you know that the cry went up of carpet-baggers. All over the South the cry was, out with

THE CARPET-BAGGERS!
Now, I have no apology or excuse to offer for that man who, when the war was over, took his carpet-bag and went South merely for the purpose of holding office and plundering the people, and then returning to his Northern home. I have no sympathy with that class of men; but I have sympathy for the men who did not belong to that class. We are all carpetbaggers.

I AM A CARPET BAGGER from Ohio. Many of you are carpet bag-gers; you were not all raised in this country. And there were some men whom these people denominated as carpet baggers who were the carriers of knapsacks: men who during the war carried your flag down the Mississippi, from Cairo to the Gulf—from Atlanta to the sea. When the war was over, in good faith they went South and settled down to live among that people, as their future home. These, with all others, were denounced as carpet baggers.
Now, when a man from the North goes South in good faith, to live there with his family for a future home, for one, an interest of protecting him in his home, but under that cry northern men are driven out; we may as well meet it. These speeches that have been made to-day, could never have been made in a dozen States in the South; and there is

NO SUCH THING AS FREEDOM.
It is just as it was before the war; no aboli-tionists could go South and read the Declaration of Independence to a slave.
And so to-day a system of ostracism exists in the South by which no man of the North can live there if he boldly declares his principles.

You as Republicans cannot live in Mississippi. I cannot live there, if we go there with the hope of advancing the interest of the Republican party, boldly, and proclaiming our principles. Now my fellow citizens, what do our Democratic friends say about it? Nothing, or if they say anything about it, they say it is a falsehood and they have no interest in it.

They will not rectify it, and I want to say that the Republican party has A WORK TO DO
here, and it has no greater work than this.
We must stand by the rights of the American citizenship; we must advocate the claims of every man, rich and poor, high and low, to live anywhere beneath the shadow of our flag, and for one, I will not take on the advent of our flag, but until the rights of every American citizen are rightly protected on every foot of American soil. [Applause.]

I want to read you a few passages that I cut out of a paper yesterday, for the BENEFIT OF MY DEMOCRATIC FRIENDS, if there are any here—published in the Kingstree Star, of South Carolina, where Wade Hampton says "everything is lovely".
The paper says this:

"It is currently reported that Swales" [was a leading Republican in that county] "contemplates returning to Williamsburg county. Now, if this be a fact, it is incumbent upon the executive committee of the Democratic party to find out what [CONCLUDED ON THE THIRD PAGE.]

THE BOSS

OF THE WORLD.

The L. J. Russell Patent Non-Freezing Double Acting Force Pump Is one of the latest and greatest wonders of the age. It is more simple than any other pump in use, and we warrant these pumps never to freeze, in fact they act as a siphon, and suck the water out of the pipe back into the bottom of the well.
It will suck water out of a well or barrel, and if water enough could be held to the nozzle, it would fill the well or cistern. Your well freezes slightly, you turn the pump, and it freezes these pumps in a well thirty feet deep and one man can force water (solid ice) through pipes seventy feet high and half a mile in distance. A great many people, as soon as they get these pumps and a short piece of hose, stop their insurance, and by getting a pump they cost different dollars, they save many times from ten to twenty times what the pump costs in insurance every year, and then they say the expression every winter, and many times: "The L. J. Russell Pump is free up again." Ship, tear, salt, hot water, freeze the pump handle, break the old man to fix it, and the pump, and then get a pump man to fix it—and how they fix it, if you are good pump.

—Summer-to-day puts on an August appearance.
—Miss Mary Stuart, of Chicago, is visiting friends here.
—The Circuit Court opens again tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.
—The moon is almost full. That is what makes it so light headed perhaps.
—The Guards drill to-night instead of using their regular Tuesday night for this purpose.

—The Lotos takes another trip up the river to-night. The Bower City Band give the music.

—Miss Mary J. Louden, of Chicago, is spending a short time with her Janesville relatives and friends.

—Rev. Junk L. Jones expects to be at home to-morrow, and will occupy his pulpit as usual next Sunday.

—A lad named Keating had two of his fingers badly mashed in the machinery of the cotton factory last night.

—The Rockford base ball club arrived by team this forenoon and are this afternoon in the field with the Mutuals.

—William Welton, of Madison, President of the State Fish Commission, is in the city, the guest of Judge Conner.

—A steam threshing machine is at work on the farm of Thomas H. Austin, to-day and will be in operation to-morrow also.

—Fred A. Caspman, the reader and elocutionist, is in the city. He may possibly arrange to give an evening's entertainment here.

—The exact amount of the arrears of pension received by Mrs. Day was $560.60 instead of the larger amount reported a week or more ago.

—James Young, who lives near the Leyden house was thrown from a horse Wednesday night and suffered a dislocation of the shoulder.

—The funeral services of the late William Casar will be held at the residence corner of Pleasant and South River streets, next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

—Only one of the five boys who escaped from the Industrial School at Waukegan, is still at large. The other four, including Burns, of this city, are now safely housed again.

—Dr. King, of the Indiana Asylum at Madison, is spending a few days in the city, being on his way homeward from Lake Geneva, where he has been recreating for a few days.

—The goods recently taken by burglars from some stores at Milton Junction have been found under the railroad switch house at that station. The burglar who was shot at Johnson's Creek, and captured, has "squealed" while in jail, and thus the track of the goods was obtained.

—It is almost as bad to hear the Pinafore as it is to get a chunk of gum in your mouth. You can't stop chewing that everlasting "sisters and his cousins and his aunts," even after your own jaws are weary, and your neighbors' ears are all worn out. It's awful, but you can't stop as long as there is anything left of it.

—A dead and dumb beggar, or one who pretends to be so, has been visiting several of the residences begging for means to get to St. Paul. He insists on displaying a nauseating sore on one hand, and seems to delight in showing the sickening sight. It is better to give him a quarter on sight than to be compelled to lose one's appetites by a look at that hand and pout.

—Congressman Deuster, of Milwaukee, has been invited to be present at the picnic to be given by St. Mary's church on Tuesday next, and has signified his intention of being here at that time. Mr. John Fellows, of Milwaukee, who is a prominent and widely-known contractor and builder, is also to be present. The picnic promises to be a grand success in all respects, and the occasion will be one of interest. The Catholic Temperance Band and Anderson's full orchestra will furnish the music.

—A most unwise thing was done at the Opera house last evening in placing chairs in the aisles. One such obstruction in the aisle could not but add greatly to the difficulty of securing a safe exit in case of any panic. In none of the cities is this allowed, and it ought not to be here. Too much care cannot be shown to prevent disasters such as are frequently taking place by a panic in a crowded house, and this above all else is a most reckless thing to do. I, those in charge of the Opera houses, are to pack the aisles with chairs, when there is a crowd, it will not be long before there will be no crowds for which they will need chairs, for many will not go to entertainments and run such risks. The fact that there were plenty of vacant seats in the gallery gave little excuse for obstructing the passages in the lower part of the house.

HAPPY HYMNALS.

WILSON-BLINN.]

An event in which the social circles of this city are interested, and which has been for some time foreshadowed, came to a happy culmination last Wednesday in Orwell, Ohio, it being the marriage of Mr. A. O. Wilson, the editor of the Janesville City Times, and Miss Lizzie Blinn, who has been for some time one of the teachers at the Institution for the Blind, and who is widely known in the musical circles of this vicinity. Both parties are so well known in this community, that the announcement of their marriage is sufficient to insure for them the warmest congratulations of their many friends. They are expected to arrive this evening from Ohio, and will take up their residence in Mrs. Brand's house in the Fourth ward.

BROOKS-NOYES.

A matrimonial event took place this afternoon, which is of more than usual interest, in social circles, owing to the large acquaintance of the parties concerned. It was the marriage of Mr. Frank Brooks and Miss Ella Noyes. The ceremony took place at 2 o'clock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Noyes, a short distance from this city. Rev. Henry Faville officiated, in the presence of only a few relatives and intimate friends, but the congratulations and well wishes will not be limited to them. Both parties are well known here, and have many friends, who unite in wishing them the brightest of futures. Mr. Brooks, in his profession as attorney and in his position as Justice of the Peace, has entered upon a career which promises great success, and out of the law office as well as in it, he is a young man most highly esteemed. The bride is a young lady who has lived here from girlhood, and has won many friends who cannot but admire her spirit and her accomplishments. The newly-wedded ones will make no extended trip, but will quietly settle at home in Janesville, where they will be greeted with cordial congratulations as opportunity affords.

THE CHURCH CHOIR PINAFORE.

The Opera house was crowded last night with those desiring to hear Pinafore. They heard it. Many there were who had heard what claimed to be Pinafore, but they all had to confess that they had never heard Pinafore. There were representatives there of many to whom adjacent to this, and the audience was of an appreciative and music-loving make-up. The applause was at times deafening, and the encores frequent. Janesville audiences are as a rule not very enthusiastic, but last night they could not forbear. Finer solo work and grander choruses were never crowded into one evening's entertainment here. The opera was put on well, and the acting was much better than was to be expected from a company made up as this is. But the music—everybody expected much, but none were disappointed.

John E. McWade, as Captain Corcoran, showed his baritone voice to fine advantage, and took the character well. Miss Jessie Bartlett, made a charming "Little Buttercup." Coupled with great personal attractiveness, she has a wonderful contralto voice, well schooled and full of richness. Mrs. Louis Falk, who has long been one of the favorite sopranos in the West, represented perfectly the Captain's daughter. Her voice though a little light, has a fine range and is pure, full and sweet. Charles A. Knorr, as Ralph Rickstraw, brought in a tenor voice, a better than which was never heard in this city. He was a favorite. Lou W. Raymond took the part of Deadeye. In some parts his voice rang out grandly, as in the duet between him and the Captain in which he gives the latter warning. Many wish they could have heard much more of him. Frank Bowen, made a most excellent Admiral. In his acting he showed that he had gained a wise conception of his part and his rich full voice was heard well. All were delighted with Miss Ada Somers as Hobe. Miss Myra Barrie and Miss Alice Mitchell took well the parts of Sylvia and Esterpe, and were in good voice. Aug. Livermen, as Bob Beckett, showed one of the heaviest and richest base voices ever heard here, and called forth enthusiastic applause by the song "He is an Englishman." C. T. Murphy as Bill Bostay, Little Sadie Mills as the cute Tommy Tucker, and Stephen Richardson, as Sergeant of Marines, all did their work well.

The chorus work was grand. The orchestra, with Louis Falk as director, was in keeping with the high excellence of the other features of the entertainment. In fact Pinafore was given in truth as well as in name, and too much cannot be said in praise of the company.

honorable. Theodore Thomas treats me with the utmost cordiality, and I am on the best of terms with the musicians. Various friends have offered to read to me, and my English, German, French, and perhaps more, are already arranged for. I have a music reader who starts off very well indeed.

Remember me most kindly to all my Janesville friends, especially the ladies and write me soon the gossip letter which you promised. I will write to you again sometime.

Yours Most Sincerely,
JOHN S. VAN CLEVELAND.

A BRILLIANT PARTY.

Mrs. Anson Rogers entertained a large number of her friends last evening in a most happy manner. The party was a very brilliant affair, the toilets of the guests being fully in keeping with the extensive arrangements made for their enjoyment. The almost matchless splendor of the night, the elegance of the surroundings, indoors and out, made the occasion one of unusual brilliancy and all the participants enjoyed it to the full extent. The second floor of the spacious residence was given up almost exclusively to the dancers, for whom music was provided by Anderson's orchestra, while those more quietly disposed sat in the corridors, chatted in the parlors, or tempted by the "soft silver light of the moon," strolled over the smoothly mown lawn, or sat in the deep, inviting shadows of the trees. The parlors were adorned with a profusion of cut flowers, and the lawn was flanked in addition to the moonlight, with diverse Chinese lanterns. The refreshments were most temptingly arranged and abundantly provided. Altogether it was a social event to be long and pleasantly remembered by the participants.

Pre-eminent

as an elegant hair dressing stands Parker's Hair Balsam, deservedly popular for the beautiful hair it produces, and its cleansing and healing properties. Commencing at the root, it promotes a luxuriant growth of young hair and unfailingly restores gray or faded hair to its original youthful color, giving a soft, rich and lustrous appearance of great beauty. It is pleasantly cooling to the scalp, cleanses it from dandruff, cures itching and humors, and stops falling of the hair. It is perfectly harmless, exquisitely perfumed, never soils the skin or gums the hair, and pleases everybody by its many excellent and attractive qualities. A patron assures us that he has used 12 different hair preparations and that Parker's Hair Balsam surpasses them all. Sold in large bottles at only 50 cents and $1.00 by all first class druggists.
